Popular Presentations: One-Woman Plays that Entertain and Inspire

Susanna Wesley: Infinitely Blessed. Susanna's home burned (twice), her husband was in and out of debtor's prison, and of her 19 children only 10 survived infancy. But she considered each of these events a personal challenge and an opportunity for the grace of God. After her death, her son John Wesley wrote, "I learned more about Christianity from my mother than all the theologians in England."

Elisabeth Elliot: The Savage People. Elisabeth's 1957 bestseller Through Gates of Splendor tells the true story of Operation Auca, where Elisabeth's husband Jim and his friends tried to bring the gospel to a violent tribe in Ecuador. The tribesmen killed them on a lonely river shore… but the story doesn't end there. After Jim's death, Elisabeth risked her life to share Christ's message of grace and forgiveness with the same tribe who murdered her husband.

Carrie G. Davis: The Devil Came Down to Chinatown. In the late 1800s, Carrie was the Supervisor of San Francisco's Oriental Home. The Methodist Episcopal Mission rescued Chinese women who were kidnapped from China and forced to serve as brothel slave in old Chinatown. When the Great Earthquake struck in 1906, she trusted God to help her lead Chinese women, children, and babies to safety through the burning streets.
